

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In general, in one aspect, the disclosure describes a switching device that includes a plurality of ports. The ports operate at asymmetric speeds. The apparatus also includes a switching matrix to provide selective connectivity between the ports. The apparatus further 5 includes a plurality of channels to connect the ports to the switching matrix. The number of channels associated with each port is determined by speed of the port.